Volunteer needed to support SISN Communications Team

Expert communication is central to the Society's strategy and there is now an opportunity for a member to support the activities of the Communications Team. This is a great opportunity to stay abreast of the latest developments in implementation science (IS) and implementation research (IR) and practice.

The Communications Team consists of two Communications Consultants and SISN's Operations Co-ordinator and has a mandate that includes:

- Ensuring the Society is at the forefront of IS/IR nutrition agenda and collates and disseminates high quality, relevant information via appropriate channels
- Advising the Communications Working Group and the Board on the Society's Communications Strategy
- Creating content for specified channels (including Social Media) e.g. highlighting key initiatives, data, events, supporting with technical briefs, etc.

Current channels include the website, newsletter, LinkedIn and Twitter.

We need about 1-2 hours of your time per week in a voluntary capacity (non-paid position).

Your responsibilities would include:

- Scanning the published and grey literature on an ongoing basis to identify research papers, reports and other resources of relevance to IS/IR in nutrition
- Abstracting key information and preparing short summaries of all identified resources of relevance to IS/IR in nutrition

Skills required:

- Background knowledge relevant to understanding and interpreting information on implementation in the global nutrition context
- Knowledge and experience of literature review and evaluation methodologies
- Excellent writing and communication skills
- Experience with on-line research tools (Pubmed, Google Alerts) and social media
- Fluency in English
- Avid team player
- Proficiency on Twitter an advantage

We encourage members with appropriate skills and knowledge and a passion to advance the IR content to internal and external audiences to apply.
