

Dr Andrea Warren

Biography

Dr Andrea Warren is a Research Associate with the Department of Health Promotion, Education, and Behavior at the University of South Carolina, and is also affiliated with the Department of Environmental Studies at Colby College as a research associate. Field experience in Ethiopia as an undergraduate studying archaeology and anthropology sparked her interest in food security and nutrition. She went on to get her PhD in Health Promotion, Education, and Behavior with a focus on international nutrition and development studies. Her dissertation fieldwork took place in Ethiopia and examined how ideas about nutrition become integrated into policy and implemented through national agriculture, health, and social protection service delivery systems, bridging public health questions and anthropological perspectives and methods. She received her PhD from the University of South Carolina in December 2017. Her current research focuses on the implementation of food security and nutrition policies and programs, and she has led and contributed to research projects in Sub-Saharan Africa, South Asia, and the United States.