

Jennifer Crum is an international public health and nutrition professional with more than 10 years of experience in nutrition and health research and program activities in Africa and Asia. She currently works for FHI 360, an international NGO, as the director of a nutrition implementation research project in Bangladesh. Jennifer has worked on multisectoral nutrition programming and policy making in Nepal and Ethiopia, in addition to her work in Bangladesh. Her expertise lies in strategic program design, monitoring and evaluation, nutrition research (implementation and evaluation) design and implementation, knowledge translation and dissemination for national and international audiences and capacity building, especially in culturally diverse, resource-challenged environments. She holds a Master's of Public Health from Tulane University and Master's of Nutrition from The University of Alabama.